"Best contemporary romance I've read in years. I'm not ashamed to admit I'm completely smitten with Marcus Blair!" - Nikki Linderholm, CBS2 News Marcus Blair, or Mr. Blair as he's known to students at Harpley East Primary School, appears to have it all: good looks, impeccable dress sense, a successful career, charisma by the bucket load, and half the female population of teachers and parents at his beck and call.

Except Eleanor. Eleanor Manning had it all: a career, a beautiful home, a circle of friends, and a doting husband. At least she thought so, until the afternoon his girlfriends arrived on her doorstep. Looking for a break from her past, Eleanor takes up a teaching position at her old school that sets her directly in Marcus's sights. When she seems determined to reject him at every turn, Marcus takes it upon himself to challenge her perception of him and, in turn, of herself. Can Eleanor let go of her past long enough to let him in and give them the happily ever after they both deserve?
