Homicide detective Noah Daugherty finds purpose in solving the most horrendous of crimes. The last thing he wants is to babysit some spoiled country singer, but that's exactly what his lieutenant demands. Posing undercover as a member of the singer's band, he makes it his mission to protect her from a stalker whose ominous threats have become increasingly personal. As things heat up, she hides a piece of her past that is key to solving the case, ashamed of the part she plays. Can Noah unearth the painful truth before spring casts its dark shadow?
