99) Due to the falling economy, companies, banks and firms in Wall Street were laying off workers by the day.

In Scully & Pershing, one associate, Samantha Kofer, was given the option to take a furlough which entailed being an intern in a qualified non-profit organization. Choosing this option would secure Samantha her health benefits and her job back in a year or two. Though hesitant at first, she did take it and ended up interning in Mountain Legal Aid Clinic located in Brady, Virginia. This was a good 6-hour drive away from New York. Samantha thought she could just leave if the work didn't appeal to her. Read more.... Download your copy today! for a limited time discount of only $2.
