Now married, Darcy and Lizzy decide to take a holiday to Cornwall. On a whim they resolve to be adventurous and make no forward reservations. If they see and inn or tavern they like then they will stay there. The holiday takes them from Bodmin Moor to Land's End and back up the north coast to fishing villages and mystical ruins. In one of the villages a surprise encounter awaits them. Who meets them there when there is no place at the inn and why does he resent his work in the tin mine? Who are the Five Sisters? And who follows them by coach around Cornwall? Find out in this funny and affectionate variation on Jane Austen's classic novel.
