Becky Callahan is finally ready to live again. After five and a half years of hiding herself, she is ready to figure out who she is. She lost herself when her husband was killed by a drunk driver, but as she works to finally let go of him, she is ready to finally find herself. Matt Davoli wants a woman like Becky. She's gorgeous, fun, and dedicated to her family. When her husband starts running around town with another woman Matt decides to say something to her about the jerk. Except the guy wasn't actually her husband. As Matt works to apologize, he finds Becky working her way into his heart.

She makes him laugh and he is drawn to her in a completely inexplicable way. And she seems to be feeling the same. Becky and Matt take one step forward then two steps back over and over again in this heart-wrenching story about love and loss. And in the end they both have to choose how they want to live their lives, with the love, or with the loss.
