“You walk the bridges between two worlds, between reality and dreams, Ciso.” “You are a Dreamwalker” Narciso di Angelo, a sixteen-year-old boy, living on the streets of Rome thinks he is the only one that can walk in other’s dreams. He’s not. When a mysterious and dark woman makes her appearance in one of his dreamwalks, he is rescued from her clutches by Project Somnus, a secret underground United Nations organisation, that recruits and trains children with his gifts, using them to fight against and prevent worldwide terrorist threats. Here Narciso learns more of his abilities and where they come from as well as what it means to be part of a family and a home. But, as the threat of the mysterious woman and the terrorist organisation Tantibus increases, he also learns what it is like to lose this. “In dreams we live. In reality we dream.”
