An ancient Christian symbol becomes the emblem of a new movement, a movement of people convinced that even in the midst of deteriorating relations between Muslims and the Western world, it is still possible to "give peace a chance". This novel is a sequel to the author's book SEARCHING FOR EDEN. In that novel Evan Jordan trekked through Iran and Iraq on a spiritual quest brought on by the death of his 14-year old daughter. On this quest he found other wounded souls from different faiths and different cultures, a fellowship they began to call "the Fellowship of the Fish." In this sequel this fellowship now fights for a vision of an Eden-like world, where terrorism of all kinds can be left behind and people can reach beyond their cultural and religious barriers. They have much opposition. An Iraqi terrorist cell steals nuclear material, and plots to deliver a suitcase bomb to a US city.

Iranian and Israeli leaders threaten war, while political forces in the US choose bravado and incendiary rhetoric over calls for peaceful solutions. All the while behind the scenes Evan, Jessica and Carmen work with their international fellowship to eliminate nuclear weaponry before it eliminates us. They will deal with political riots in Iraq, hostile mobs in Washington DC, the violence of a right-wing group at an Israeli archaeology site and a nuclear bomb no one can find.

Can this interfaith fellowship persevere against entrenched hate? Join Evan Jordan and friends in this peace action-thriller!
